Research Experience

University of North Carolina School of Medicine

Role of proteasome inhibition in modulating inducible chemo- and radioresistance of pancreatic cancer

Preceptor: Name and Department
July 2002 – June 2003

Funding: Holderness Medical Fellowship

Description: Investigated the role of NF- κ B in the chemo- and radioresistance of pancreatic cancer in vitro and in vivo. Utilized a novel small molecule proteasome inhibitor to block NF- κ B activity and modulate resistance to apoptotic stimuli.

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Synthesis of long-chain hydrocarbon imidazole derivatives for use in drug delivery to cytoplasm

Preceptor: Name and Department
January-May 1998

Description: Synthesis of imidazole derivatives containing long-chain hydrocarbon group for incorporation into liposomes to be utilized in pH-dependent drug delivery to the cell cytoplasm

Development of multi-color immunofluorescent staining technique for study of p21, p18, and p16 protein-protein interactions

Preceptor: Name and Department
August 1998 – January 1999

Description: Conjugated fluorescent tags to antibodies specific to G1-phase cyclin-dependent kinase inhibitors, p21, p18 and p16. Conjugated antibodies were used in immunohistochemical staining of tissues from transgenic mice; tissues examined microscopically.

Employment
